Built in 1937, this stately brick home is unexpected in Silver Lake, where midcentury modern and Spanish-styles reign. It's located on one of the windy, steep streets above the Silver Lake Reservoir, the main advantage of which is that it affords hilltop views from nearly every room from the kitchen to bedrooms.

The interior is stylishly contemporary with a kitchen outfitted with blue cabinets and subway tiles. Other features include a glossy fireplace, a curving staircase, multiple decks, and an expansive lower level with exposed rafters.

Last sold one year ago for $915,000, the property, which measures 6,690 square feet, is on the market now for $2.5 million.
